

Technology Justice: What does it mean?

Pupil Sheet

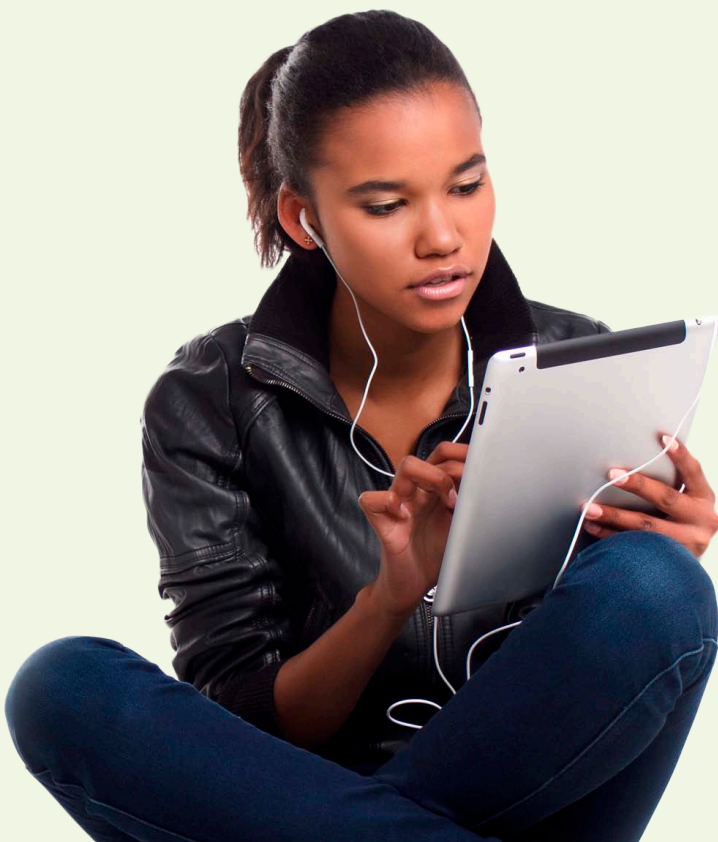

Practical Action is an international development organisation that believes in Technology Justice; an idea that...

'Everyone has the right to access the technologies they need to live the life they value without limiting the ability of others now and in the future to do the same.'

What do you think it means?

Look at the main parts of the definition and use the questions to decide what Practical Action means by Technology Justice.

Add your answers ideas into the question boxes overleaf.

Technology Justice definition

Who is everyone? Is Practical Action working with some people rather than others?

What does the right to access mean?

What technologies do people need?

Everyone has the right to access the technologies they need to live the life they value, without limiting the ability of others now and in the future to do the same.

How can technology help people to live the life they want to live?

Does technology have any negative effects on people as its being made, used or disposed of?
Does technology have any negative effects on the environment as its being made, used or disposed of?

Are there any long term effects of the use, production or disposal of technology that cause long term impact on future generations?
