

Practical Action exclusion policy

Practical Action is committed to being an open and transparent organisation and to disclose project and programme information through IATI published information.

This policy sets out where there may be restrictions and constraints that we need to adhere to and therefore it may not be possible to publish full details.

Record exclusions

- For security reasons, transaction level reporting will be excluded to avoid personally identifiable data that may put staff, partners, communities or offices at risk.
- Projects will be reported at a minimum country and project level together with details of our funding sources.
- Only the names of certain donors will be published in order to comply with data protection and to take into consideration donor requirements where some donors wish to remain anonymous, or if this is required under the terms of a contract with a donor.
- Project level documentation will not be published as Practical Action does not wish to disclose any information that may be confidential due to legal or contractual reasons or any information that may harm Practical Action Operations either in the UK or overseas.
- The intention will be to publish information on projects that are active at the time of publication.
- Data for fundraising, governance and our subsidiaries has been excluded but we intend to review our internal processes, systems and reporting to enable us to meet this requirement in the near future.
