Editors

Richard Carter – Independent consultant, UK

Paul Hutchings – Cranfield University, UK

Published since 1982 Waterlines is a peer reviewed journal providing a forum for all those involved in extending water supply, sanitation, hygiene, waste management, and related issues in developing regions, to come together and debate key issues.

Articles should be original contributions, up to 6000 words in length, formatted to house style and not under consideration elsewhere. If you would be interested in submitting to Waterlines further information can be found on the journal homepage www.practicalaction.org/waterlines

Full instructions for authors, including a house style guide can be found online at www.practicalaction.org/waterlines-instructions-for-authors

All articles should be submitted via Waterlines online submission and peer review system www.edmgr.com/waterlines

Waterlines participates in an open access programme, Open Online www.practicalaction.org/open-access

Launched in 2016, this annual prize is to be awarded for an original non-commissioned paper submitted to Waterlines by a first-time author in the early stages of their career.

The winner, selected by the Waterlines editorial board, will be awarded book vouchers to the value of £200 (redeemable at www.developmentbookshop.com), a 2 year subscription to Waterlines (print and online www.developmentbookshelf.com) for personal or institutional use, and a £100 cash prize.

The next award will be made in March 2018 for articles submitted for consideration during the previous volume year (January – December 2017).

All articles should be submitted via Waterlines online submission and peer review system www.edmgr.com/waterlines

The Jeroen Ensink Memorial Prize

commemorates the life and work of Waterlines' Editorial Board member Dr Jeroen H.J. Ensink. Throughout his career, Dr Ensink sought to apply science and research to improve the lives of those who in the twenty-first century still live without access to safe drinking water and sanitation. He pursued this goal via different paths – as a practising public health engineer, as a young field researcher, as a doctoral student, as a senior investigator, and as a teacher and mentor – but always with the same clear and practical focus on solving the problem. Dr Ensink left behind him an impressive legacy of work but he also left a very personal mark on his many colleagues and friends in the water and sanitation sector.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The prize will be judged by the Waterlines editorial board.

The judges' decision will be final and no correspondence entered into.

Should no entries be deemed suitable, the prize will not be awarded.

The award winner, and any entrants given commendations, should be willing to provide a photograph of themselves and to participate in relevant promotional coverage which may be undertaken by Waterlines and Practical Action Publishing.

If you have any questions about the prize or how to enter, email waterlines@practicalaction.org.uk
